THE undersigned would respectfully solicit the attention of dealers in and consumers of Coal in Milwaukee to our Card, as above. The Boliuar Coal is unquestionably superfor to any other mined in Ohlo, for Grato, Blackansthing, Machinery, or Domestic purposes; as and for Ream purposes, is superior to any except Britar Bill. It is peculiarly well adapted to Shipping, as its extreme hardness renders! capable of bearing any amount of landling, without mane. It can be afforded considerably cheaper than Briter Bill, and for most purposes, is better.

The our wish to introduce the article, and we respectfully solicit orders, confident that a trial is only recensary to convince any of the truth of the above assertion.

Union Springs, N. Y.

THIS Association is formed for the mutual relief of its members in case of eighness or accident. A careful examination of its principles, and its beneficiant objects, is respectfully solicited. The character and standing of the Board of Directors is a guaranty that the money recoved will be safely preserved, and faithfully decided to the objects proposed. The progress of HEALTH INSURANCE, within the past fow years, in boalities where its principles have been understood, and its beneficiant results practically seen and felt, is unparabelled.

Mon are literally binding themselves together to hear one another's burdens. No kind of insurance can be so generally useful as that of Health; for most people are dependent upon it as the capiest which enables them to procure the means of hiselihood. Hence, when hy diference or needlent tild is gone, all is gone; and either on unpleasant dependence on friends, or potenty and purposism, it has consequence. It is not procured that accident or the Largest of disease can be prevented; but hy a who forestiongite, a formal many be provided, which, when the land of arilletion does come, will solven its superitie-quadracture a confortable support for yourself or lamb;

BLEAK HOUSE. CHARLES DICKENS.

disentangle it from its mystification and bring it to a close. In the mean time the place became dilapidated, the wind whistled through the cracked walls, the rain fell through the open roof, the weeds choked the passage to the rotting door. When I brought what remained of him home here, the brains seemed to me to have been blown out of the bonse too: it was so shattered and nimed." He walked a little to and fro, after saying this to himself with a shudder, and then looked at me, and hightened, and came and sat down again with his hands in his pockets.

"I told you this was the Growlery, my dear. Where was 1?"

I reminded him, at the hopeful change he had made in Black House: true. There is, in that city or London there, some property of ours, which is CHAPTER VIII.—COVERING A MULTITUDE OF SINS.

It was interesting, when I dressed before day-light, to peepout of window, where my candles were reflected in the black panes like two beacous, and, finding all beyond still unstrouded in the indistinctness of last night, to watch how it turned out when the day came on. As the prospect gradually revealed itself, and disclosed the seene over which the wind had wandered in the dark like my memory over my life, I had a pleasure in discovering the unknown objects that had been around me in my sleep. At first they were faintly discernible in the mist, and above the later stars still glimmered. That pale interval over, the picture began to enlarge and fill upso fast, that at every new peep. I could have found enough to look at for an hour. Imperceptibly, my candles became the only incongruous part of the morning, the dark places in my room all melted away, and the day shone bright upon a cheerful landscape, prominent in which the old Abboy Church, with its massive tower, thew a softer train of shadow on the view than seemed compatible with its rugged chrauter. But so from room on the own was in such order, and CHAPTER VIII.-COVERING A MULTITUDE OF SINS. or London there, some property of ours, which is much at this day what Bloak House was then,—I say property of ours, meaning of the Sut's, but I ought to call it the property of Costs; for Costs is the only power on earth that will ever get any thing out of it now, or will ever know it for any thing but an eye-sore and a heartsore—It is a street of perishing blind houses, with their eyes stoned out; without a pane of glass, without so much as a window-frame, with the bare blank shuttens tumbling from their hinges and falling asunder; the tion rails peeling away in flakes of 11st; the chimneys sinking in; the stone steps to every door (and every door might be Death's Door) turning stagmant green; the very crutches on which the ruins are propoed, decaying. Aithough Bleak House was not in Chancery, its master was, and it was stanged with the same scal. These me the Great Scal's impressions, my dear, all over England—the children know them!"

"How changed it is," I said again.

"Why, so it is," he answered much more theerfully; "and it is wisdom in you to keep me to the bright side of the picture." (The idea of the picture." (The idea of my wisdom!) "These are things. I never talk about, or even think about, excepting in the Growlery, here. If you consider it right to mention them to Rick and Ada," looking seriously at me, "you can. I leave it to your discretion, Esther."

"I hope, sir—" said I.

Away I ran, however, and made tea, as I had already been installed into the responsibility of the tea-pot; and then, as they were all rather late, and nobody was down yet. I thought I would take a peep at the gaiden and get some knowledge of that, too. I found it quite a delightful place; in front, the pretty avenue and drive by which we had approached, (and where, by-the-by, we had cut up the gavel so traibly with our wheels that I ushed the gardener to roll it.) at the back the flower-garden, with my darling at her window up there, incoving it open to sinile out at me, as if she would have kiesed me from that distance. cousin John—a bold thing to say, though he only pinehed her dear cheek for it.

Mr. Shimpole was an agreeable at breakfast, as he has been over-night. There was honey on the table, and it had him into a discourse about Rees. He had no objection to honey, he said (and I should think he had not, for he seemed to like it), but he protested against the over weening assumptions of Bees. He didn't at all see why the bare Bhs abould be proposed as a model to him; he supposed the Bee liked to make honey, or he would not do it—nobody asked him. It was not necessary for the Bee to make such a merit of his tastes. If every confectioner went buzzing about the world, banging against every thing that came in his way, and egotistically calling upon every body to take notice that he was going to his work and must not be interrupted, the world would be quite an insupportable place—Then, after all, it was a ridiculous position, to be should not of your fortune with brinastone, as soon as you had made it. You would have a very mean opinion of a Manchester man, if he spun cotton for no other purpose. He must say he thought a Drone the embodiment of a pleasanter and wiser idea. The Drone said, unaffectedly, "You will excuse me; I really cannot attend to the sleep! I find myself in a world in which there is so much to see, and so short a time to see it in that I must take the liberty of looking about me, and begging to be provided for by somebody who do-en't want to look about him." This appeared to Mr. Skimpole to be the Drone philosophy, and he thought it a very good philosophy—always supposing the Drone to be willing to be on good terms with the Bee; which, so far as he knew, the easy fellow always was, if the consequential creature would only let bim, and not be so conceited about his honey!

He pursued this fancy with the lightest foot over a variety of ground, and made us all merry; though again he seemed to have us serious meaning in what he said as he was capable of having. I left them still listening to him, when I withdow to attend to my duties. They had occupied me for some time, and I was pressing through the passages on my retorn with my basket of keys on my mo, when Mr. Jandyce called me into a small room heat his bedelamber, which I found to be in part a little library of books and papers, and hat-books.

The last Hulsemann Letter.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun gives a synopsis of Chevalier Hulsemann's letter, communicated to the State De-partment, just prior to his departure for Austria. lis chief grievance seems to have been that his minunt services in behalf of despotism were not fairly appreciated by a republican press. The following is given as the substance of the letter: following is given as the substance of the letter:

Ho left the letter, in person, with a messenger of the State Department, after office hours, and on the evening prior to Mr. Webster's department of the north. The contents of the letter are a necital of his giverances, and of those of his Government, on account of which, he says, he decems it proper for him to withdraw from his mission. He does not state that he was under instructions to withdraw, in case Kossuth was received here, but there can be hitle doubt that he acted under instructions.

He commences by stating that the newspaper press had treated with ridicule his diplomatic intercourse with this government, that they had succred at his representations, and at the manner in which he had made them.

succred at his representations, and at the manner in which he had made them.

His complaints of this treatment were made to the Secretary of State, but he obtained notedress. Subsequently, he says, Kossath was, contary to his protest, received by the Government; and the Secretary of State attending an entertainment given to Kossath, delivered a speech of a character fattering to Kossath, and unfriendly to the Imperial Government.

He then, he says, waited upon the President and inquired whether the act of the Secretary and the views expressed by him, were to be considered as approved by the executive government, and that the President informed him that the act and speech were not official. But, he continues to say, that the President's assurance on that point was not satisfactory, and was not followed by any change of tone on the part of the press, in regard to himself; and, in consideration of the injurious treatment he and his government have received he decined it necessary to withdraw from the legation and return home.

I felt that I was choking again—I taxed myself with it, "Esther, now, you know you ne "-when he figured to say this slightly, as fit were a whim, instead of a thoughtful tenderness. But I gave the housekcoping keys the least shake in the world as a reminder to myself, and folding my hands in a still nore determined manner on the basket, looked at him quietly.

"I hope, Guardian," said I, "that you may not trust too much to my discretion. I hope you may not unistake me. I am afraid it will be a disappointment to you to know that I am not cleve—but it really is the fruth; and you would soon find it out if I had not the honesty to confeer it."

He did not seem at all disappointed; quite the contrary. He told me, with a smile all over his tion and return home.

He does not request the Sceretary of State to communicate the letter to the President, but he says that he is very thankful to the President for the courtesies which he had received from him, and he winds up in the usual phrase of " accept the saveners." Ac. the assumes," &c.

The letter calls for no reply. It is not probable that a successor to Mr. Hulsemann will be appointed; but under another administration he or some other Charge may be sent back.

contrary. He told me, with a smile all over his fire, that he knew me very well indeed, and that I was quite clever enough for him.
"I hope I may turn out so," said I, " but I manuch atraid of it, Guardian." THE FAMINE IN GERMANY.-The London Times' correspondent gives the the following feartul account of the state of things in Southern and Central Germany:

The condition of the peasantry in many parts of Germany, has chiefly through the failure of the potato crop, last year, at length become one of such fearful and indescribable distress, that I of such fearful and indescribable distress, that I feel sure a few particulars respecting it will prove a subject of painful interest to many of you readers. Poor Southern and Contral Germany, still suffering from the baneful effects of the late political convulsions, have now, in addition, been visited by death, disease and famine.

Truly heart-rending accounts continue to arrive from many parts well known to and much frequented by English tourists for the beauty of their scenery; so from Wettemberg, Bavaria, the Grand Duchy of Baden, Nassau, and more especially from the Vogelsburg and the Odenwald, rough mountainous districts—the one situated in the north-western part of the Grand Duchy of Hesse, the other to the north, and forming part of the "Bergetrasse," a road extending from Darmstadt

This was the begining of my being called Old Woman, and little Old Woman, and Cobweb, and Mrs. Shipton, and Mother Hubbard, and Dame Dunden, and so many names of that sort, that my own name soon became quite lost among them.
'However,' said Mr. Jarndyce, 'to return to our gossip. Here's Rick, a fine young fellow full of promise. What's to be done with him?
O my goodne-s, the idea of asking my advice on such a point!
"Here he is, Esther," said Mr. Jarndyce, comfortably putting his hands in his pockets, and stretching out his legs. "He must have a profession; he must make some choice for himself, there will be a world more Wiglomeration about it, I suppose, but it must be done."
"More Wiglomeration," said he. "It is the only name I know for the thing. He is a ward in Chancery, my dear. In these localities whole villages are being destroyed for want of foed. Their unfortunate inhabitants, who, in times of comparative properity, else out but a scanty and miserable existence, have been wanting their staple food—petatoes. In other parts trade is standing still; of 18,000 homs, in a single province of Bavania, almost exclusively inhabited by weavers, not half are at full work. The people are deprived alike of the productions of nature and the fruits of industry; and, to consummate weetchedness and despair, and an extreme deatth of movisions, whole herds of cattle and sheep are killed by a rapidly spreading disease.

We learn from Washington that Fitz Henry Wanien, Esq., has tendered his resignation in the Post Office Department; and the correspondent of the Commercial Adactives says this step was taken in consequence of the Post Master General's decision that it was "indelicate" in him to express a preference for any other Presidential candidate than Mr. Fillmore. This lacks confirmation, as it seems to conflict with Mr. Fillmore's declaration, during Mr. Tyler's Administration, in favor of the one-term principle, on the ground that, in no other way could the netual President be precluded from making a corrupt use of his power and patronage to perpetuate his continuace in office. Regarded from another point of view, however, it may be thought to corroborate that declaration. Mr. Warnen was appointed by Gen. Taylor Chief Clerk in the Appointing Bureau of the Post Office Department. He was removed to a less responsible position upon Mr. Fillmore's advent. He is an able officer, an astute politician, and an upright, trae-hearted man.

It is also removed that Mr. Goodrich, Chief Clerk in the Department of the Interior, has resigned We learn from Washington that Fitz Henry "Perhaps it would be best, first of all," said I, "to ask Mr. Richard what he inclines to himself," "Exactly so," he returned. "That's what I mean. You know, just accustom yourself to talk it over, with your tact and in your quict way, with him and Ada, and see what you all make of it. We are sure to come at the heart of the matter by your means, little woman." I really was flightened at the thought of the importance I was attaining, and the number of things that were being confided to me. I had not meant this at all; I had meant the should speak to Richard. But of course I said nothing in reply, except that I would do my best, though I faned I teally feb it necessary to repeat this) that he thought me much more segmeions than I was. At which my guardian only laughed the pleasantest laugh I even heard.

"Come!" he said, ising and pushing back his chair, "I think we may have done with the Growlery for one day! Only a concluding word, Estl errany dear, do you wish to ask me anything?" It leoked soutentively at me, that I looked attentively at him, and felt sure I understood.

these same gentlemen are now so extremely fond of the Compromises that they oppose Goneral Scott, because he don't come out with a letter endorsing them. Nay, they even endorse the conduct of the Southern bolting members of Congress, and demand that the endorsement of the Fugitive Slave law per se, shall be made a party issue in the North. Fugitive Slave law per se, shall be made a party issue in the North.

Men change, principles never. We stand where we did in 1848, and so do the Whiga of the North. We have no sectional biases. We have no friends to reward,no enemies to punish; nothing to serve but our country. While Governor Seward was stumping the North in favor of General Taylor, and the success of the Whig party in 1848, many who now deery him as an abolitionist, were then treating with the Buffalo Conventionists. We state what we do know; and what we have said is less than what is due to one of the ablest men, one of the purest pa riots, in the whole Union. And we are glad that Mr. Botts, a Virginia Whig, with that chivalric valor and high sense of honor which "feels a stain like a wound," boldly comes out for the long suppressed but God born truth. We say again, that we are not bound by circumscribed limits, we are a national Whig. We respect and love the men of the South, as well as we do the men of the North. As our own Webster said, "We are countrymen all," and we go for making our country, one country—each State enjoying its own State institutions, with none to inolest them, or make them afraid—and for putting down this mere, narrow, gangrened sectionalism, and placing thereon, as upon a serpent, the heel of the patriotic, national, united Whig party.—Bodon Allas.

City Matters. MILWAUKEE & WARWATOSA PLANK ROAD.-A ride out upon this new road yesterday showed us that it is getting on rapidly towards completion Only about 34 of a mile remain to be finished, before it will connect with the Milwaukee & Watertown Plank road, a short distance west of Wauwatoso. It is a capital road, well built of oak plank and passing through five miles of as handsome farming land as one would wish to see. It joins the Lisbon road on the top of Chestnut street hill The great advantage which its enterprising projectors claim for it, me that it leaves the Watertown toad where that passes near the milroad, and that it traverses high ground. It is expected that the road will be completed by the 1st of July. One scarcely appreciates the rapidity with which our city is growing, without running out occasionally upon these north west roads, where streets are constantly filling up with comfortable dwellings in great numbers. Beside this, it seems but yesterday that, in spring and fall, we were blockaded in the city by deep, swampy, muldy roads. Now, we have seen plank roads, leading out in every direction, and all doing well for their Seriors Iva av.-We learn that, on Saturday morning, as Mr. Power, of the fitm of Power & Schley, was driving in a carriage on the Watertown plank road, about 4 miles from the city, the horses took hight at the whistle of the cars, and overturned the carriage, throwing out, and seriously injuring some of those who were in it. A lady, who had recently mrived from the old country with a large family, and to whom Mr. Powerhad sold a farm which they were driving out to see, had her arm broken and was otherwise stockholders, to say nothing of their benefit to the

According to Mr. Power's statement, the whole blame rests upon the engineer of the train (a greeel train) who, without the slightest occasion, let off the whistle when very near the team, there being no crossing near, and no other reason for the slarm. We trust that the Company will look into the matter. The frightful yell of a steam-whistle is not a thing to be played with along the side of a nuch travelled road.

STEAMBOAT AND HOTEL RUNNERS .- A good dea of annecessary "noise and confusion" is made on the Piers and at the Railroad Dopot by the runners and porters for our different Hotels. It is an annoyance of which travellers loudly and with reason complain. All the shouting of the most stentorian lungs does not enhance one jot the claims of a good Hotel to public patronage, and is much more apt to repel than to attract custom. The Common Council have passed an Ordinance to cure this evil, and we trust that the Marshal and other City Officers will see that it is promptly and regularly enforced.

THE KUNKELS .- This popular band of minstrels opens in this city to-night, after closing a successful series of concerts in Chicago, The Chicago Journal sets them up as follows:

Seldom indeed, is such an amount or variety of talent, combined in a single Company. Muster Floyd as an Ethiopian Dancer, has few equals. George Kunkel's "Old Sexton," and similar songs, are given with a pathos and beauty of expression, rarely heard in Concert Rooms. Harry Lehr in Solos and Choruses, is a sweet as a harp, while W. P. Lehr handles the Baujo like a muster of "stringed instruments." f "stringed instruments."

There is nothing to which fastidiousness itself can except, and we commend the whole Troupe, and their gentlemanty and honorable Agent, John T. Ford, to the confidence of the craft throughout the West.

The steam-frigates are the Mississippi, the Sus-quebanes, the Powhattan, the Sau Jucinto and the Saranac. Gov. FARWELL—In this number will be found Gov. Farwell's letter to the Sec'y of State, declining to have anything to do with the getting up or preparing the "Stock Certificates," &c., mentioned in the Law which was passed over his veto, and giving his reasons therefor, to which we invite attaction.

The reasons appear, as did those in his vete message, for his course then, to be ample, and we think that a little reflection and some experience will show that the Governor is right. If we ence will show that the Governor is right. If we had always had as faithful a guardian of the pupilic interest as L. J. Farwell, our State affairs would not have the confused appearace which they exhibit now. He is not disposed to disagrad the Constitution, as some would do, when it comes in the way of some favorite scheme. Unfortunately it is, for our Notthern neighbors, that the Constitution prohibits a State indebtedness. But if they had an Executive, as reckless as some have been in this matter, we night have had one, notwithstanding this very salutary provision. The Governor undoubtedly did right.—Elkhorn Star.

KENOSHA MARKET-PRODUCE AND POLITCS. The Telegraph speaks as follows encouragingly f the state of things in Kenosha:

of the state of things in Kenosha:

Kenosha has gone through with her share of the hard times—we are confident. The faces of our merchants grow wider, and of course are not so "long." It is no trouble for them to smile.—Their wallets increase in thickness—and they walk faster as they go to and from their meals. The wheat teams are thicker, and they dive down to the Steum Mill, the most of them do, where they get cash and a good price too, for their wheat; and, they can carry home some flour if they have a mind to. The mechanics are busy at work all day, and just before studown you will see some of them—and others who have "fast" houses, on the planks. Jehn! how they go! look out there, buy, or you'll get your neck broke!

Every thing moves, but the conservative old hunkers of this world, and the "cases in chance-the country nearly a thousand dollars. Things ain't so fast though, as we thought they were. Scott in Kentucky .- The Lexington Observe ad Reporter thus disposes of Humphrey Marshall's

"It is all sheer nensenso (we mean no disrespect to the member from the Louisville district) to talk about such a Whig as Gen, Scott, with his brilliant military renown and his great fund of political information, not being able to carry the Whig State of Kentucky. We think he would run full up to the vote given to Gen. Taylor, or perhaps even that of Mr. Clay. The Whig voice of Kentucky was announced at Frankfort for Millard Fillmore, not from any want of confidence in Gen. Scott, either as to his orthodoxy or his availability but from the prefound conviction that the nonmation was eminently due to a statesman of so enlarged and comprehensive views as Mr. Fillmore has proved himself to be. This is what we think was meant by the Frankfort resolutions and no more."

LA CROSSE VILLAGE.—La Crosse is growing more rapidly at the present time, than at any former period of its existence. Buildings are being constructed in almost every direction—the sound of the hammer and saw can be heard early and late, on every street, and yet we have not buildings sufficent for our population.

The four story public house, of Messus. Tallmadge & Gridley, is progressing finely, while from street is being filled up with buildings for ousiness, and numerous dwellings are preparing to go up on the more pleasant and level grounds of fourth and fifth streets. La Crosse with or without public improvements is bound to be a large and important town, as it is the entrepot of a vastregion of country, which must have access to a market.—Spiril of Times.

Inducation Nor Granter.—We learn by a private dispatch from Washington city, received in this city yesterday that the application by the Michigan Southern Railroad Company, for an injunction against the Michigan Central, brought before the Supreme Court of the United States, has been refused. This, we presume, settles the question as to the right of the latter company to build and use a track from Michigan city to the Illinois State Line under the Salem and New Albany Charter, and will, we trust, be the end of legal controversey between the two companies.—Chicago Tribane.

Mineral Wealth of Wisconsin,—The Copper and Iron mines of Wisconsin, said to be extensive, are not worked to a sufficient extent to be present as available sources of profit. Our mines of which compares, if not in present productiveness, at least in future prospect, with any lead mines in the known world. The committee appointed by the Wisconsin Legislature last winter, in report on the extent of mining, quantity of mineral annually exported, with the condition of maning generally, after a laborious investigation, presented a lengthy report from which we select a few facts:

—The average annual export of lead raised from the Wisconsin mines, for eleven years, iz not less than 40,000,000 of pounds, or 20,000 tons, worth $1,500,000. This am't raised annually, is equal to 34 cents on each dollar of taxable property in the mines; or $30 to each man, woman and child within the mining district of Wisconsin for each year; and with the increase of population there is a corresponding increase in the export of lead. The average yield per annum, to each regular miner, is about 25,000 pounds, wonth about $680. About nine-tenths of all the lead produced in the lead-bearing district, located in Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin, is raised from the Wisconsin nines. Of the 78 townships embraced in the lead region, 62 are in Wisconsin, and these by far the richest. These lead-bearing towns cover Grant, Iowa, Lafayette, and small fractions of Greene and Dane counties. The amounts above are from the best authority we can get and no part of them have ever been met with an attempt at contridiction, that we know of. Where the committee made uncertain estimates, we have invariably given the lowest.—Grant Co. Herald, raun Trans.—So far as we are able to discover, our farmers and others are paying more attention to the planting of fruit trees than they have for years past. The nurseries here, at Oak Grove and Artslan, have disposed of large numbers of trees the present spring. BLOST GOLD RECOVERED.—On Monday the trunk belonging to Mr. Merrit, of Nashville, containing $12,000 in gold dust, lost on the Robert Rogers, was fished up from the bottom of the river. The gold was the total result of two or three years' hard labor in Californis, and the recovery of the trunk was certainly an extra piece of good luck.
